

Christmas 2009

Oh, what a lovely year except that we do not have a child at Princeton. More on that later.

This year we will cover our family in reverse order by age.

The newest member to join us is Tabitha Jane Whitney who was born in Boston on September 19th. She is apparently the cutest baby in the world based on our totally unbiased opinion. We went up to see her at the beginning of October and she will be here in Georgia for her first Christmas.

Megan has decided to follow in her father's footsteps and forsake corporate America and pursue advanced degrees at Yale where she is currently working on her Masters in Public Health. She and her marvelous dog Dillon drove up to New Haven, Connecticut accompanied by her favorite Dad.

Kelly, who, of course, is the mother of the delightful Tabitha decided to follow up on the wedding of the century with the baby of the century (so far). Kelly and her husband Evan are having a wonderful time with all the incredible gadgets they have for babies now and really love sleep deprivation. Kelly is continuing work on her Ed.D. at Harvard and learning that playing with a baby is more fun than research.

Jackie is just beside herself with joy and happiness that at last she is a grandmother although she is a little concerned about being half of "Gram & Cracker" which are our designated grandparent name. You'll never guess who did the designating! She is still working at Lowe's as the world's finest kitchen designer which is not as much fun in a recession as it has been but nevertheless it keeps her from becoming a fan dancer and talking with hobos so it's a good thing.

Bill is still a lecturer at Ga Tech and also dabbles in theater of various types. Don't ask, you won't believe most of it. He once vowed that he would not become nutty like other men when they have grandchildren and so far this can be considered a monumental fail. He has Tabitha on his computer screen as the background and he spends a lot of time looking at her and smiling like he is slightly demented. He will tell anyone who he can get to stand still and listen that this is the world's cutest baby and his kids are at Harvard and Yale. Pretty much no one likes to talk to him anymore. He doesn't care since his picture was in Professional Photographer magazine (as a model) and it was bigger than Colin Powell's picture. If you come for a visit you can see it.

Go Tigers!

Merry Christmas
